NEW MEAT AGING PLANT OPENED BY SAFEWAY

Put into operation this week is Safeway Stores' new $430,000 meat aging plant. In announcing the opening, Ralph Pringle, divisional manager of Safeway, pointed out that this is the second plant that the company has built in Los Angeles in the past four years. The new plant, located at 4510 South Alameda street, is used for aging and cutting fresh meats. It replaces the one that was built in 1936 and has since been outgrown. Provisions have been made in the construction of the new plant for further expansion in size.

Covering nearly two acres, the new plant is of steel and concrete type. Practically the entire interior is refrigerated. There are 829,500 cubic feet of refrigerated space in the plant. Both temperature and humidity are controlled automatically. In some rooms a temperature of 20 degrees below zero Fahrenheit is maintained.

The capacity of the new plant is three times that of Safeway's original one and makes it the largest of its type in the West. Biggest of its divisions is the meat aging room, where row after row of meat is held during the aging period. Here, under accurate temperature and humidity control, the meat stays while the natural enzymes within the meat act upon the tough tissues to make the meat tender and more digestible. At the present time nearly 1,000,000 pounds of meat are on hand in the plant.

One of the most important functions of this central plant is the "breaking up" of quarters of beef and other types of meat into convenient bulk cuts. These bulk cuts are sent to Safeway markets where retail butchers cut off steaks, chops and roasts as needed. Highly trained men, using big power saws, accomplish this "breaking" process.

Gauchos Play Compton In Practice Friday

Altho rated as underdogs, Narbonne's rabid followers are to witness a fiercely-fought battle when Compton's Tartars invade the Gaucha campus tomorrow afternoon to oppose Narbonne's Gauchos in a practice game. The Gaucha aggregation will be at full strength against the Tartars. With two weeks of strenuous scrimmage under their belts, Coach Bill Sloan has rounded his proteges into fine competitive condition for their opener. As in former years, Narbonne will utilize the Jones system of attack but may shift its offensive thrusts many times in an effort to obtain a consistent, ground-gaining offensive.

REV. WINIFRED CLOUCH

A former pastor of the Torrance Assembly of God church, Rev. Winifred Clouch, is conducting revival services at that church, located at 1741 Border avenue, each night at 7:30 o'clock. Rev. Wise, in extending a cordial invitation to all residents to attend the special services.

Hughes Aircraft Plant to Rise In Two Months

Construction of the proposed new plant of the Howard Hughes Oil Tool Company at the corner of North Wilmington and Sepulveda boulevards is expected to start within two months. The plant, when completed, will represent an investment of nearly $1,500,000, it is reported. The site will comprise 17 acres with the possibility that additional land will be purchased later as the plant expands. Products will be oil tools during the first months of the plant's operation but it is believed provisions will be made also for the manufacture of airplane parts. This will be the company's first Pacific Coast plant. Howard Hughes, head of the company, is the famed transoceanic aviator who set a record for 'round the world flight two years ago.

Daddy telephoned last night from way off somewhere

"Mother says folks didn't have telephones once upon a time and she wonders what they ever did without them. Just think, she says, how tired she'd be, if our telephone wasn't here to help her do her errands every day. And tonight, she says, Daddy will call us from 'way off, way off, to say Good-night and tell us when he'll be home. I'm going to stay right here beside the telephone until Daddy calls. I'm going to ask him what Mother means when she says, every night, 'Little girl, sleep safe: we have a telephone!'"
